

426 The Bridegroom soon will call us

Johann Walther (1496-1570) transl. Matthias Loy (1828-1915)

Peter Lambert (b. 1964)

$\text{♩} = 94$

1. The Bride-groom soon will call us: "Come, share the
2. There we shall see, de-light - ed, our great Re-
3. In yon - der home shall nev - er be si - lent
4. In man - sions fair and spa - cious will God the wed - ding feast!" — May not His voice ap - pall deem - er's face, — who leads our souls be - night - mus - ic's voice; — with hearts and lips for - ev - feast pre - pare, — and, ev - er kind and gra -

- us while watch - ing we have ceased. — May all our ed to glo - ry by His grace. — The host re - er we shall in God re - joice. — The an - gels cious, bid us its rich - es share. — The bliss that lamps be burn - ing and oil we have in deemed shall meet us, the bless - ed, ho - ly shall a - dore Him, the saints shall sing His knows no mea - sure from springs of love shall store, — that we, with Him re - turn - band, — and loved ones there will greet — praise — and bring with joy be - fore — flow, — and nev - er chang - ing plea - ing, may find an o - pen door. — us in that ce - les - tial land. — Him their sweet - est heav'n - ly lays. — sure His boun - ty will be - stow. —